GRAND VOTING CONTEST BEGINS THIS WEEK

The two first prizes have been awarded. The other prize will be a lady's $15 gold watch, 20 year case, which will go to the contestant in Cooke county, but outside of the corporation of Newport, who has the largest number of votes after the first two prizes are awarded.

Miss Effie Jackson, the manager of the contest has had a long experience, and will see that every contestant gets courteous treatment.

Many contestants have already been nominated. Others will be announced next week and there is every indication that there will be more active workers in this contest than in any other ever held in Newport. This will mean a scattering of the votes and a fair chance to every one.

Those nominated this week are the following:

Costner News

Costner, Aug. 16.—Good health prevails in this community and the crops are in good shape. We were visited by a fierce storm last Saturday, corn and cane being knocked down. Deputy Sheriff Harrison Grooms made his way through this section last week looking for some parties who had gone to Sevier county.

P. M. Valentine is still helping out the people of this section by running a produce wagon, gathering up the beans, cabbage, cucumbers and other produce and putting them on the market. J. H. Maddron is still among his relatives at Costner.

Elder W. H. Thomison of West Virginia is visiting his many friends at Costner, he having taught school at Laurel Springs, nineteen years ago. He will preach at the Laurel Springs church next Saturday night, and on the Sunday following. Everybody is invited as he is a man of no little ability and a good clean record. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Caton and Prof. James Rains was the guest of F. H. Maddron last Sunday. Wilts Smith who was crippled in a runaway two weeks ago is still on crutches. The Fair advertising man was through this section last week, and instead of confining his posting to the blacksmith shops, plank fences and trees the signs were nailed to school houses and church doors.

Mrs. Lloyd Weaver of Washington, D. C. has been visiting Mrs. Henry Penland at Rankin for the past few days, and will be here with Mrs. Algia Ragan the last of the week. Before returning to Washington she will spend some time in the vicinity of Parrottsville. Mrs. Weaver is a daughter of Robert Ragan, the well known Washington citizen, and she is accompanied by her son, Clarence.

MET DEATH AT SWEETWATER

Prominent Lady is Instantly Killed
When Buggy is Hit
By Train.

Sweetwater, Tenn., Aug. 12.—Mrs. W. H. Smith, one of the best known women of this section, was struck and instantly killed by a work train of the Southern Railway at the Main street crossing in front of the Sweetwater hotel Saturday afternoon. The deceased was riding in a buggy and had just driven upon the crossing behind a freight train, which was pulling out of town, when she was struck by the work train, which was backing from the opposite direction to that in which the freight train was going.

The horse driven by Mrs. Smith had just passed over the track, but the buggy was struck squarely and completely demolished. Although the train was stopped before it passed over the body of the unfortunate woman, her neck was broken by the force of the collision, and many other bones were also broken. Medical aid was summoned immediately but Mrs. Smith expired before the physicians arrived.

Mrs. Smith, who was seventy-two years of age, was a member of one of the oldest and best known families of this section. Her husband was the late W. H. Smith and her only son is D. L. Smith, manager of the local office of the East Tennessee Telephone company, and for many years publisher of the Sweetwater Telephone. D. L. Smith is at present secretary of the Tennessee Press association.

C. B. HAAG IS WITH CONSTRUCTION CO.

C. B. Haag has accepted a position with the American Light and Water Company of Chicago, and has opened the offices of the company in the old drug store property immediately opposite the post office.

The office will be maintained there throughout the construction of the water system. The pipe continues to come into Newport by the ear load and it is expected that the actual work of construction will begin in the next few days.

TWO FINGERS AMPUTATED

Slight Accident at Crestmont—
Other News of Busy
Little City.

Crestmont, N. C., Aug. 16, 1911.—Dave Henry of Bryson City, N. C., employed at this place, met with a very painful injury Friday. While working with the loader he was caught in the rope and carried up and his hand caught in the wheel, his second and fourth fingers being so badly mangled that they were afterwards amputated.

Frank Brown who has been clerk in the commissary for a number of years has resigned and moved to Waterville where he will engage in business for himself in the near future.

W. W. Bible and family have moved to Newport and their friends here regret to have them no longer with us.

Arthur Ford has been appointed Squire to succeed W. W. Bibee. He is a busy man at this place, holding down the positions of postmaster, depot agent beside his new duties.

The Old Climax engine which was wrecked a year or so ago near Mause Creek has been taken up and sent to the shops for repair.

Allen McGaha of Hartford is spending a few days here.

Charles R. Clark is timekeeper at Waterville for the Tennessee and North Carolina railroad.

Squire John Henry of Sevier county, Tennessee has been elected principal of the school at this place. Mr. Henry has had charge of several schools and has always met with success.

Mrs. James White of Richwood, W. Va., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kirk.

Mrs. Frank McKury of Canton, N. C., is spending the week here.

R. P. Clark is building a new store room, 30 x 60 feet at Mt. Sterling to accommodate the large stock of goods. He has a stock of goods at Browns managed by Steve Wardrup.

Mrs. Rains, who was operated upon several weeks ago for the removal of a stone from her bladder, has returned to her home at Grassy Fork.

JONES ABROAD

Take a trip around the great universe and receive a liberal education at a small cost. $1.25 and 15 cents extra if mailed to any address.

No story ever published contained a more life-like description of travels. Every place worth looking at under the sun is visited and accurately described. Read the review of Tom W. Winder, Editor of "Travel" an illustrated magazine of education.

Practically everybody knows Jones. But few, however, were aware Jones had gone abroad. Nevertheless, he did, and the things he saw and the things he did and the things people did to Jones are chronicled in a lively story under the caption "Jones Abroad."

It is rather unique to travel literature, because it is as different from the usual tale of travel as the usual tale of travel is different from a novel. Jones sees many things that the other travelers missed. It is written without a bit of reserve, and such a commingling of humor, laughter, pathos, human nature and national life is seldom brought together. The author is able, without effort, to take the reader with him. He tells you the world's story of a man of few words, but numerous ideas, and tremendous feeling and appreciation, only could tell it.

Mr. Wilson Jones, a New Yorker, is one of a party of five or six, later increased one more by Maitland, a retired English officer who joins at Gibraltar, who set out to see the world, and so delightful do they find the travel game that they eventually go some 65,000 miles before they are "home again," after three years of traveling. They visit all the countries of Europe, do most of Africa and Asia along the usual lines of travel, then to New Zealand, Australia, South America, and back via Hawaii. The young ladies of the party are an added attraction to Mr. Jones and Mr. Maitland, the soldier, and in the end, to give the tinge of romance and to bring the story to a fitting finish there is a double wedding.

"Jones Abroad" makes you see things in a simple and direct way—there is no extra talk. For instance, when in Jeypore, India:

Bewildered by the brilliant and picturesque scenes witnessed in the streets of Jeypore, Jones failed at first to notice improvements superior to those of many European and American cities. Splendidly planned and laid out, it is divided into rectangular blocks. The streets are remarkable for their width, the main streets being 111 feet wide, paved, lighted with gas, and lined with marble halls and beautiful buildings, "Pink," said Tot, as they walked along, "why, everything is pink."

Pink is the fashionable color. Every house is painted that color, for pink reigns supreme in Jeypore.

"Is it a city, or are we in fairyland?" exclaimed Belle, as they looked down one of the main thoroughfares. Thousands of gayly dressed natives appeared before their vision, arrayed in all colors of the rainbow, radiant in the bright sun. The numerous donkeys and camels and here and there the form of a huge elephant, all gayly caparisoned, added more life and color.

"It is indeed a most unique scene," said Maitland "and probably the finest picture of native life we can find in all India."

The author, a Chicago real estate dealer, has done an interesting and instructive thing in his story, and the book should be read very generally, as it is bound to be enjoyed.
